This mishap can be turned into a blessing for Ghana. His expertise can be made useful. If this guy forms a political party with an agenda being: "Reclaiming our stolen wealth from the colonial masters by hook or by crook" We will all vote for him.

narrative into a BOOK. he must use this book to say it all. It will be an eye opener and a sell out. He should know, it will be difficult to get an employment but he can become an author, which could take him into Public Speaking and live his dreams. Eventually, people will consult him as an expert. If he doesn't do this, the other option of depression and frustration could take a better part of him which will eventually destroy him.

Chapter 1 could talk about who he is. Born to what family, His transition to the UK, His citizenship, education etc

Chapter 2.

His working life. What his career was all about. How he got adventurous.

4. The UK immigration and legal system. Why and how they could send him to Ghana.

Touch on the various tussle, time in jail

5. The deportation experience and it's implications

6. His dreams, Hopes and aspirations and confronting current realities.

7. The contrast of realities, superstition, the natural life and spirituality. Why did this happen to him just when UK laws were being changed

8. Fighting against a system that hailed you but rejects you because you failed, not because you were evil

9. Putting back his life on track again. Seeing light at the end of the tunnel

10. Lessons learnt. Lessons shared.

Cues and suggestions for his industry, employers and employees. etc

Plus any other thoughts.

This is a complete book. He can also be hired to teach Fraud Detection in his fields. This and much more awaits him

This is the man , who is clearly intelligent, who has always blamed everything and everybody for his demise in the UK. Look at the reporting and summations of the UK courts and put your emotions to one side for a moment. There are many clips on youtube that may help and even change your views somewhat...

he can indeed make it big time in Ghana but made a criminal of himself in the UK and which he admits...

@nigel seymour seymour so what's your point here? We all agree he made a mistake n there is room for him back in Ghana to move on. He blamed it on the system and people there and that's the truth. The executives knew what he was doing. That's all. He was doing that for himself but for the company.. Go n read the final verdict.. Do you know what the FBI and CIA do in USA? They would've used him secretly in the US to help the system. The guy has a lot of great ideas n shouldn't be shawn away.

@george johnson watch your comment. Were you there when the alleged money was stolen? These whites are capable of doing anything. None of those who caused financial crisis in 2008 was held accountable (imprisonment) for that, till today, Why? because they are whites.

Kwaku is just another victim of racial act of the UK. I am a victim of this kind of racial act myself. I know what i am talking about.

This guy was allegedly collecting 200,000 Pounds annually. White people can't stand it when a black man is earning such money or when a black man is involved in their elite-society.

They feel like a black man just doesn't belong there. It happened to me in 2011.

There was no other plausible outcome to his legal fight. The British government had made the decision that we would go a long time ago and they weren't hiding it. Besides, many people get deported on the daily basis for the same reasons. To expect a particular treatment is really just at one's own peril. So knowing that, why you choose to stay in a deportation Center for years after having been in jail for years, when you could be "home" at any time of your choosing is baffling. He maintained during the whole process that he had no ties to Ghana and hadn't been there since he was 4. Yet there were 30 people awaiting him at the airport and "for the first time in 7 years he's free". I mean go figure. And I don't believe this was all so he could maintain the chance to fight global warming across the globe. Please. No the law won't change because of you. You clearly don't know what you're against.
